

I feel the do not call list is the best thing that ever happened. I really get sick and tired of telemarketers intruding on my private home time with my family. I really resent the fact that every time I lay down in the afternoon to get some sleep for the nightshift that the telephones in my house begin ringing off the hook. I believe that if I am capable of going to work everyday and paying my taxes and bills on time that I am capable of initiating contact with a company that I may be interested in without being harassed in my own home. These companies know that in this day and age that most people don't have the luxury of unplugging the telephone especially when you have school age children and need to remain accessible to their teachers and schools. These companies use this and other facts to launch what I feel is an assault on my free/sleep time. To whoever created the do not call list. Thank you from the bottom of my heart.
